CAPTAIN'S MESSAGE:

Captain Michelle Jean
Commanding Officer
Richmond Station

Hello Richmond District Residents,

Enjoy a fun and safe Halloween tonight!

Here are a few tips to have a safe night:

- Cross streets at corners, traffic signals, and cross-walks.
- Carry a flashlight or wear something reflective.
- Drivers please slow down and be alert for extra foot traffic in residential neighborhoods.

Officers from Richmond Station will be out in the community handing out candy and stickers so be on the look-out.

We will also have candy at the station, if you are in the neighborhood stop by and say hi!

Stay safe and have a great week!

An Observer attends, watches or listens to a government meeting. You can do this on your own, to any standards you set. Public meetings are already open to you. You don't need to take this training, but we hope it helps you get the most out of observing.

What do the police do for you?

The highest priority of the San Francisco Police Department (SFPD) is to protect people's lives. They aim to keep our city's people and property safe, prevent crime and improve quality of life by enforcing the law.

The SFPD builds the city's trust by engaging with people in the community.

If you have a police complaint, contact the Department of Police Accountability

Observe meetings with the League of Women Voters San Francisco

We attend, watch and listen to public meetings dealing with policing practices. We gather information because we want to learn about the issues, meet the people making decisions, inform others, and protect everyone's right to public records and meetings.

Code Enforcement

Message from the City Attorney

Code Enforcement is not a topic you often see covered in the news media – except when a horrible tragedy occurs because a business or property owner ignores health and public safety codes that exist to protect the public.

13 young partygoers die in Chicago when an unsafe apartment building deck collapses.

100 people die in a Rhode Island nightclub fire ignited by an illegal indoor fireworks display.

5 seniors die and another 20 become seriously ill at a Connecticut nursing home, poisoned by salmonella.

These are the dramatic headline-grabbers, but closer to home in nearly every San Francisco neighborhood there may be Fire, Building, and Health Code violations that threaten our health and safety.

My office works with the Building, Health, Planning, Public Works, Fire and Police Departments to identify threats to neighborhood health and safety and devise the most appropriate and effective solutions.

Our success also requires the watchful eye of people in the neighborhoods. If you see property conditions or business activities that you believe threaten health or safety, call my Code Enforcement Hotline at 415-554-3977.

Working together, we can make a difference.

City Attorney Dennis J. Herrera

Process*

*Every code enforcement case is unique, and the process for correcting certain violations may differ from this example.

Types of Violations

Housing and Building Code Violations

Lack of heat or water, dilapidated conditions, unsafe or illegal construction, plumbing, electrical and/or mechanical problems, seismically unsafe buildings, or vacant and abandoned buildings.

Fire Hazards

Lack of fire sprinklers, sprinklers that don't work, lack of fire extinguishers, blocked or locked exits, excessive flammable materials, or overcrowding at entertainment venues.

Private Property Used for Criminal Activity*

Drug dealing, prostitution, illegal businesses, nuisances at liquor stores and entertainment venues, or gambling.

Health Code Violations

Insect or rodent infestation, trash accumulation, abandoned cars/trucks, overgrown vegetation, mold, peeling lead paint, hoarding, or hazardous materials.

Zoning and Planning Violations

Unauthorized property uses, residential use of commercial spaces, commercial auto repair at residential properties, illegal signs, non-compliance with landmark preservation laws, destruction of San Francisco historical landmarks, or illegal short-term rentals.

Public Works Violations

Blight, broken sidewalks in front of residences or businesses, or illegal dumping.

*Please note, our code enforcement efforts aim at long-term solutions for blighted properties. For crimes in progress, please call 911 for police assistance.
